Prerequisites

You do not need any experience of working with Excel to attend this course.

In fact, if you are already familiar with some of the workings of the program, you may prefer one of the other short courses that miss out some of the basic principles (for example, Excel - Basic Calculations).

What's next?

It is best to get some experience now of working with Excel and trying out some of the basic calculations. Use some of the shortcuts and just get familiar with the program in general.

If you are feeling ready, you might want to look at the Excel - Calculations (Next Steps) course.
